Subject: Deal may put Microsoft at head of the class

This NEWS.COM (<http://www.news.com/>) story has been sent to you from herbamac@snowcrest.net

Message from sender:

I want to protest this proposed settlement of the anti-trust suit. This is giving Microsoft the best deal possible. A much better solution and one I propose you try to get, is instead of products, Microsoft give money to allow the schools to purchase what ever equipment and software they prefer.

Please don't let the monopoly continue. I work for a department of the US government and the entire computer/information tech group is a blatant front for Microsoft products. Please stop this monopoly from continueing.

Deal may put Microsoft at head of the class

A proposed settlement agreement to donate some $500 million in technology to schools could give the software maker a chance to erode Apple's position in education.
